

THE HONEST VERSION

Where we are not the cheapest

There are people in this county who will scoop a yard for less than we charge. They are not lying about the price. Here is what is usually different.

Where the waste goes

The cheapest quotes almost always mean bagging it into your own bin. Ours leaves in the truck.

Who turns up

A rotating helper does not learn your gate, your dog, or the corner of the yard that gets missed.

Whether anyone is insured

Ask. It is a fair question and it costs money to answer yes.

If price is the only thing that matters, take the cheaper quote — but ask those three questions first.

SIDE BY SIDE

The same yard, three ways

	YOURSELF	CHEAPEST	US
Time	13 hrs / year	None	None
Waste	Your bin	Your bin	Hauled away
Whole yard	When you can face it	The obvious spots	Walked in a pattern
Same person	You	Whoever is free	Same tech
Insured	n/a	Ask	Yes
Text alerts	n/a	Rarely	Arrive and finish
Winter	If you go out	Often paused	Year round

Every column describes what is common, not what is universal. Some independent scoopers do all of this — the point is to ask.

THE ARITHMETIC

What the hours cost

Fifteen minutes a week is thirteen hours a year, spread across the weeks you least want to be outside.

Weekly service for one dog is $80 a month — about $18.50 a visit. Two dogs is $90, three or more is $100. Less frequent service costs less; a one-time cleanup is $100 flat.

Rates were current when this was printed and cover standard residential lots up to about a third of an acre. Scan the back for today's table.

AND THE FIRST ONE

Free, with any plan

The first cleanup is on us with any residential plan, whatever state the yard is in. That is the whole first visit.
